

Yale Journal of Music & Religion

Volume 5
Number 2 Music, Sound, and the Aurality of the Environment in the Anthropocene: Spiritual and Religious Perspectives

Article 1

2019

Note from the Editor

Jeffers Engelhardt
Amherst College

Follow this and additional works at: <https://elischolar.library.yale.edu/yjmr>

Recommended Citation

Engelhardt, Jeffers (2019) "Note from the Editor," Yale Journal of Music & Religion: Vol. 5: No. 2, Article 1.
DOI: <https://doi.org/10.17132/2377-231X.1179>

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by EliScholar – A Digital Platform for Scholarly Publishing at Yale. It has been accepted for inclusion in Yale Journal of Music & Religion by an authorized editor of EliScholar – A Digital Platform for Scholarly Publishing at Yale. For more information, please contact elischolar@yale.edu.

Note from the Editor

With this special issue of the Yale Journal of Music & Religion dedicated to music, sound, aurality, and the environment in the Anthropocene, we pause to thank Suzel Ana Reily, professor of ethnomusicology at the Universidade Estadual de Campinas, Brazil, for her service as one of the founding associate editors of the YJMR. Professor Reily's expertise in the music of vernacular Catholicism in southeastern Brazil and her foundational work on music and world Christianities have been a vital part of the YJMR's mission and identity. The special issue she edited in 2016 on the sounds of processions was a signal moment in establishing the YJMR's interdisciplinary profile and demonstrating its commitment to publishing work on a diverse range of religious traditions and expressions. We are deeply grateful to Professor Reily for her collegiality and service, and we are pleased that she will remain on the YJMR's editorial committee.

My colleagues and I also take this opportunity to welcome Ruth HaCohen (Pinczower), Arthur Rubinstein Chair of Musicology at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, as a new YJMR associate editor. Professor HaCohen's scholarship ranges widely over the relationship of music, religion, and politics, including examinations of religion and art in Jewish culture and histories of Jewish-Christian musical encounters. Her book The Music Libel against the Jews (Yale University Press, 2011) won the 2012 Otto Kinkeldey Award from the American Musicological Society for the most distinguished book in musicology. We are honored to have Professor HaCohen join YJMR's editorial team and look forward to years of fruitful collaboration.