Viniar spoke with Bensinger late Thursday and proposed splitting the current dispute of $4B. As a go forward we would continue to split the margin calls 50/50. This would not impact the $3B they have already posted. Bensinger has agreed to come back to Viniar. He is out of the office returning tomorrow (Wednesday) and David hopes to hear from him/reach out by Thursday.

Will post additional details as available.

I think David is still discussing with them. Mike Simpson: any update from David?

Have they agreed to the language of the dealer poll? ... Alternatively, if they wouldn't agree to a jointly-administered poll, maybe we do a poll ourselves as an indication of "market clearing price" for these trades?

Neil,

Just to let you know, that as I believe was agreed on Friday night by our two respective institutions, we will today be posting the amount of collateral we believe to be undisputed.

This amount totals $1,007,679,756. This differs very slightly from the spreadsheet total we sent you because of the following adjustments:

* We have removed Hout Bay since there is still no business agreement on the collateral mechanism for that trade.
