YALE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF NURSING
FROM THE BRADY OFFICE

1933 has been an eventful year, for it has furthered important advances in nursing education both within and without the School.

The approval by the President and the Corporation of the recommendation of the Faculty of the School of Nursing that the entrance requirement for the Class of 1937 and thereafter be a baccalaureate degree is second only in importance to the acceptance of the School of Nursing on a parity with the other schools and colleges of the University in 1923.

The recent substitution of the Bachelor of Nursing degree by that of Master of Nursing upon the completion of the professional curriculum is gratifying recognition of the educational value of the curriculum.

A further progressive step is the provision for advanced graduate work by the inclusion of a Department of Nursing Education in the Graduate School through which research and study in the sciences may be furthered. The faculty assigned for this division may be of interest:

Professor Effie J. Taylor, Chairman
Assistant Professors Elizabeth Bixler, Laura Grant, Elizabeth Melby, Augusta Patton
Instructors Jean Barrett, Marion Leonard, Helen Resch

In addition the following members of other faculties have consented to serve:

Professors Maurice Davie, C.-E. A. Winslow
Clinical Professor Catharine C. Miles
Assistant Professor Bessie Gambril

Despite the depression that has seriously affected the educational progress there is definite evidence of the slow but steady advancement of nursing education toward a sounder professional basis. It is of interest that the Western Reserve University School of Nursing recently raised the entrance requirement to the completion of the college course, and it is reasonable to believe that other schools will rapidly follow.

Wide and enduring results we hope may be predicted from the recently organized Association of Collegiate Schools of Nursing, the objectives of which are briefly defined as follows:
To develop nursing education on a professional and collegiate level,
To promote and strengthen relationships between schools of nursing and institutions of higher education,
To promote study and experimentation in nursing service and nursing education.

The need of such an Association is evidenced by the many universities and colleges, stated as approximately 100, that have recognized directly and indirectly nursing education. In January 1932 a notable group of educators and physicians together with representatives from the leading schools of nursing gathered in response to an invitation of Dean Russell of Teachers College, Columbia University, to discuss the formation of an organization through which the interrelationship of schools of nursing and institutions of higher education might be achieved on mutually acceptable bases.

This meeting was the direct result of months of study under the able leadership of Professor Isabel Stewart and her associates of the Department of Nursing Education in an effort to clarify the complex problems involved in effecting an integration of the art and science of nursing practice and in terms of credits approved by academicians. At this meeting the organization designated as the Association of Collegiate Schools of Nursing was formed, some 20 schools with university connections were provisionally enrolled, officers elected, and the required committees appointed.

Yale University was privileged to be the seat of the first annual meeting of this Association. Through the courtesy of Dr. Morse the spacious and attractive seminar room of the Obstetrical Department was assigned for the conference. This enabled the informal discussions which were necessitated by the demanding task of formulating standards and evolving a constitution and by-laws that would ensure that schools holding active membership maintain standards justifying full recognition by the university, and would also provide the steps through which associate members might advance to such recognition. Addresses during the session were given by President Angell, Dean Winternitz, and Dr. C.-E. A. Winslow. Dean Furness of the Graduate School, also Secretary of the Association of American Universities, responded most helpfully to a request for a discussion on methods of evaluating work in determining eligibility for membership.

Delegates were present from the following colleges and universities: California University, Catholic University, Duke University, Hampton Institute, Michigan University, Oregon University, Rochester University, St. Louis University, Simmons College, Skidmore College, Syracuse University, Teachers College, Columbia University, Vanderbilt University, Virginia University, Washington University (Seattle), Washington University (St. Louis), Western Reserve University, Yale University. By vote of the delegates the officers who had served the first year were reappointed:

President Annie W. Goodrich, Yale University
Vice-President Marion G. Howell, Western Reserve University
Sec.-Treasurer Isabel Stewart, Teachers College, Columbia University

Meetings of the Executive and other Committees will be held during the Convention of the National Nursing Organizations in Washington, D. C., in April of this year.

The tasks of the coming year will be the formulation of the required application questionnaire, consideration of applications, and the raising of funds for the general expenses and greatly needed studies.

On behalf of the Association of Collegiate Schools of Nursing and at the request of the representatives present, may I express our keen appreciation of the very charming tea given by the Alumnae Association of the Yale School of Nursing and of the invaluable cooperation of the members of the Faculty during the demanding days of the conference.

The Yale School of Nursing alumnae are to be congratulated on the contribution that has already been made to the advancement of nursing education through members of whose success in their various fields in this and other countries we are justly proud.

Annie W. Goodrich.

Last September marked the tenth anniversary of the founding of the Y. S. N.

To honor Dean Goodrich and the successful completion of the ten-year period, the alumnae association gave a reception in the Sterling Hall of Medicine at which three hundred university and professional people were present, including President and Mrs. Angell, the deans of the other university schools, Dr. Buck and hospital officials, Miss Beard from the Rockefeller Foundation, members of the nursing faculty, alumnae, and student-body.

Barbara Munson, '28, Elizabeth Bixler, '27, and Hazel Bowles, '30, arranged the affair.
AN OPEN LETTER

April, 1934.

Dear Alumnae:

At the Y. S. N. alumnae meeting last June we discussed the desirability of having a portrait of Dean Goodrich for the school. It was suggested that funds be solicited from the alumnae, the students, and from both present and former members of the faculty of the school. Such a group would number about 260. It is possible to have a portrait painted for $500. Therefore a contribution of $2.00 from each individual would ensure us sufficient money. Professor Deane Keller of the Yale Art School has been recommended as the artist.

Dean Goodrich, when approached on the subject, said in her characteristically modest and generous way that although she appreciated the honor, she would prefer to have the money collected put into the Scholarship Loan Fund. Nevertheless, the majority of us feel that, although the Dean's claim to immortality does not rest on a portrait, it would be to the lasting pleasure of the school to have one.

Therefore we are asking if you would care to contribute any sum from $2.00 up. Anything over the requisite amount of $500 for the portrait will be put into the Loan Fund, as it is being used continuously and indubitably needs our support.

Will you send your contribution to Hazel Bowles, treasurer, 62 Park St., New Haven, as soon as possible so that we may have a favorable report for the June meeting. If you have any further suggestions to make, we should be glad to hear them.

Sincerely yours,

Elizabeth Bixler

for the committee.

The third annual Opportunity Sale (highfalutin for rummage sale) was staged during March 21-23 by the New Haven alumnae in the interests of the student scholarship loan fund.

These sales have become so popular and respectable that it is a matter of embarrassment not to be wearing someone else's cast-offs. Shirley Shingle, '32, was managing director this year. The net profit was over $200.

Sometime in May a circus will be put on for the same cause. Isabel Howe, '31, will be ring-master.
PROGRESS NOTES

The first catalogue of the Y. S. N. for 1924-25 contained 34 pages; the latest one for 1934-35 takes 49 pages to describe the curriculum. The first class of 1926 graduated nine students, eight receiving a Diploma in Nursing and one, a college graduate, receiving a Bachelor of Nursing degree. When the class of 1934 leaves this June, twenty-eight students will receive their B.N.'s, seventeen of whom hold previous college degrees, the remaining eleven having completed two or more years of college work. When the as yet unentered class of 1937 finishes the course, the degree of Master of Nursing will be conferred on a group of young women all holding previous college degrees or their equivalents.

The class of 1926 had a faculty of eleven: professor Annie W. Goodrich; associate professor Effie J. Taylor; two assistant professors, the dispensary supervisor and the teacher of the principles and practice of nursing; three instructors, the medical and surgical supervisor, the obstetrical and pediatric supervisor, and the supervisor in the technique of nursing practice; and four assistant instructors, the head nurses in communicable diseases, surgery, obstetrics, and the operating room.

Miss Goodrich, Miss Taylor, Marguerite Robb DuMortier, operating-room supervisor, and Miss Quinlan, secretary to Miss Taylor, have been with the school since the first class; Miss Clarke, Miss Patton, and Miss Reeve arrived in 1925 as assistant instructors and are now registrar, dispensary supervisor, and educational director of the New Haven V. N. A. respectively; Miss Tracy joined the staff as surgical supervisor in 1926 and left her position as assistant superintendent of nurses only a few months ago; Miss Melby came as educational director in 1927; and Miss Carpenter began her invaluable secretarial work in the dean’s office in 1928. These people have grown up with the school and can tell harrowing tales of midnight deadlocks over the teaching of square or round corners, open or closed beds, green or pink tags for this or that, and similar controversial problems that must be settled in shaping procedures for a new school.

The course of instruction has expanded from twenty-eight months to thirty months, with affiliations in psychiatry at Butler Hospital in Providence, R. I.; in public health at the New Haven V. N. A.; in tuberculosis nursing at the William Wirt Winchester Hospital in West Haven; in child guidance at the clinic of child development in the Yale Institute of Human Relations.
Record work has slowly but steadily diminished to allow more time for reading and conferences . . . from an experience record for each patient in the first classes to a record a week in the middle classes to a minimum of two records for each service in the last classes. Each service still merits one case-study. The school of nursing library held 800 books for reference in 1927-28. To-day it contains about 2,123 books and pamphlets relating to nursing, medicine, and the social sciences.

The graduate courses in nursing are constantly being developed and now include study in principles of ward management and teaching, principles of supervising and teaching, principles of nursing education, nursing administration and organization, community nursing, and advanced psychiatric nursing.

A recent feature of the clinical instruction during the first year is a series of weekly medical clinics at which four students discuss respectively the medico-pathological, the nursing, the social and economic, and the psychiatric aspects of the patient under consideration. Members of the nursing, medical, and psychiatric staffs give consulting time to the students and also attend and contribute to the clinics. It is hoped to initiate similar clinics in the surgical, pediatric, and obstetrical services.

The infirmary has developed into a real health service. No longer do harassed supervisors alternate in caring for sick students. A permanent staff arranges for all physical examinations and check-ups and cares for any wounded or stricken.

The hospital itself has changed tremendously, from the old Gifford and North and South buildings to the new five-story Fitkin and Tompkin memorial wings with the latest physical equipments. The tunnels, however, are still a maze and still a hopeless labyrinth for preclinical students and wandering visitors.

At a February state meeting of nurses in Hartford, the Y. S. N.
alumnae association was presented with a bronze Florence Nightingale lamp in recognition of the greatest increase in alumnae membership over any other nursing alumnae organization in Connecticut.

This trophy is on permanent display in the Brady seminar room . . . permanent till some other school outnumbers us in entering and graduating students.
VITAL STATISTICS

Elizabeth Hawkins Wilson, '31, and Dr. Clement Wilson are the parents of a baby girl born last September. Bece's sister is a member of the present freshman class.

Eleanor Tilton Davis, '31, and her husband, Rowland Davis, are "expecting" sometime in May.

Louise Hanson, '32, and Mr. Hanson have adopted a baby boy. Charlotte and Jimmie Stringham visited the Hansons for a few days last summer on their way to the west coast and China.

Janet Colvin arrived at the home of Peggy Colvin, '31, and Dr. Colvin on March 18. She is sister to Caryl, now two years old.

Sally Crandall Washeim, '29, and Dr. Washeim welcomed Gretchen into their household on March 26. Sara Jane is two years old.

Adelle Baldwin Lanoue, '31, recently sent a snapshot of her year-old son. He is a laughing chubby youngster, an albino compared to his native-African playmates.

The class of 1932 boasts one baby, the bouncing boy of Ruth Pearson and Dr. Ovid Pearson. He is seven months old.

At present alumnae of the Y. S. N. are represented in seven foreign countries and twenty-one states.

Three are in Syria, three in China, two in Canada, two in Yugoslavia, and one in Africa, Nova Scotia, and South America.

In the United States there is one representative in Arizona, Idaho, Illinois, Kansas, Maryland, Tennessee, Texas, Missouri;

2 in Minnesota, Maine, Virginia;

3 in Ohio, California;

4 in Michigan, Washington;

5 in New Jersey, Rhode Island;

6 in Pennsylvania;

10 in Massachusetts;

27 in New York . . . 16 in New York City;

70 in Connecticut . . . 54 in New Haven.

Hawaii awaits the return this summer of Alma Whitman, '32. She plans to "finish up" at the University of Hawaii.

Esther Budd, '31, and Verna Smith, '33, got those leaves of absence we all think about in February and March and spent a few weeks in Florida and Bermuda, respectively.

Laura Burrow and Marion Raynor Farnham, '33, motored to Florida last fall.

Jean Russell, '32, succumbed to scarlet fever shortly after joining the staff of the Lakeside Hospital, Cleveland, this winter, but is up and about again now.

Lucy Shaw, '31, and Mr. MacAlister Avery Schultz, Princeton '27 and Yale School of Forestry '33, plan to be married this fall. Probable destination: Tennessee.

Grace Lyman, '31, is returning to her native soil this summer to assist Miss Tracy at the University of California training school for nurses in San Francisco. She will be the assistant superintendent of nurses.
Miss Margaret Tracy, B.A., M.S., left her position as assistant superintendent of nurses and assistant professor in the Y. S. N. last December to become assistant professor in the University of California and director of the university’s training school for nurses.

At Yale Miss Tracy is remembered by all classes since 1926. First surgical supervisor, then instructor in the principles and practice of nursing, she held her position of assistant superintendent of nurses from 1929 to the time of her resignation.

Miss Tracy has had a varied administrative background in both public health and institutional fields. We watch the shaping of the educational program at California with interest.

The latest list of publications of the National League of Nursing Education contains "A Curriculum Study in Social Hygiene for Nurses" by Mae McCorkle, '27.

Frances Thielbar, '32, and Tabitha (Tibbie) Wilson, '33, tried raising a pair of cocker spaniels this winter at Butler. But in spite of the foster-mommas' training in infant feeding and nursery school methods, both doggies came to an untimely demise.

Someone says that she heard that Shirley Carlson, '33, has been doing hostessing on a mid-western air-line.

The 166 alumnae of the Y. S. N. are accounted for in the following table. The public health group includes those working in dispensaries as well as in V. N. A. organizations.

Miss Laura Grant, B.S., M.A., has replaced Miss Tracy as assistant superintendent of nurses and assistant professor in the Y. S. N.

Miss Grant has had extensive administrative experience as principal of the Cleveland City Hospital school of nursing from 1920-23; principal of the Lakeside Hospital school of nursing during 1923-24; director of nurses at the Lakeside Hospital during 1924-32; and assistant professor in the Western Reserve School of Nursing from 1924-32.

These expurgated extracts are taken from a letter sent by Tony Daniels, '30, last October, a month after she began night-supervising in the University of Beirut hospital in Syria:

"I have just been swimming at the University Beach with Laddie ... Woodmont can't touch the place for rocks ... The Mediterranean is about ten times saltier than the Atlantic. You come out of it covered with crystals. The color of the water is a glorious deep but bright blue, and there are no tides, probably because of the narrow straits of Gibraltar which make it almost a lake.

"The student nurses are cute as the dickens ... and temperamental ... I love the patients ... Some of them can't stand lying on a high bed and will leave the hospital unless they're allowed to pull their mattresses under the bed and park there. When they want anything, they clap their hands, which is much more effectual than hollering 'nurse!', but I nearly jumped out of my shoes when I first heard it. The men particularly miss all the things they wear on their heads and immediately try to improvise from what is at hand. Invariably it's a striped bed-pan cover which makes a beautiful turban or a decorative cover for a bowl of fruit. Many of the patients have at least one member of the family staying with them, in which case the relative pays for a bed or stays on a mattress on the floor. Imagine my surprise when, going to look at a woman in for cataract extraction, I found her nursing her three-month-old baby, and there the baby stayed until the woman went home.

"I'm not studying Arabic formally, but am picking up words here and there so that I can at least say, 'Hello, how are you?', 'Where do you feel bad?', 'You'll be better soon!', 'Yes', 'No', 'Good-by', 'Go to sleep!'. The only drawback is that when I venture my one or two words, the patient usually rattles off sentences by the dozen, so that I end by waving my hands and shouting 'No speak Arabique! ... or else, which makes me feel much more stupid, he answers in perfect English with a broad smile ......."
A new feature of student-life at the Y. S. N. is a series of after-dinner coffees, held in the living-room of the Sterling dormitory, at which various interesting persons tell about their work or their hobbies.

During a two-year period Dr. William Lyon Phelps has spoken on modern books, Dr. Herbert Thoms of the obstetrical department has exhibited his etchings, Miss Dorothy Chase of the school of fine arts has discussed ancient art and shown lantern slides, university-librarian Dr. Keogh has displayed and talked about some rare old books, Dr. C.-E. A. Winslow has presented a picture of world-wide public health activities, and political speakers have discussed candidates and current problems of the day.

These gatherings are informal and rapidly becoming an integral part of the winter program. A student committee directs them; the performers are kind enough to give their time gratis.

Election of officers for the next three years will take place in the alumnae meeting this June.

Officers who have served for the past three years are Barbara Munson, '28, president; Elizabeth Bixler, '27, vice-president; Hazel Bowles, '30, secretary-treasurer.

What is your idea about the Alumnae News? Is it interesting? Should it be continued? What form should it take? How should it be financed?

The alumnae association has paid for these first two issues and has sent a copy to everyone regardless of whether or not her dues are paid to the present time. Dues for non-residents of the state are only a dollar a year; dues for practicing Connecticut residents are four dollars a year, which includes all state fees. Dues may be paid at any time, but preferably in January of each year.

Consider your dues and send them to Hazel Bowles, treasurer. And consider the Alumnae News and send your opinion about its past, present, and future to the editor, Eleanor King.

Graduation exercises fall on Wednesday, June 20. That places "The Dean's Dinner" on Tuesday evening, June 19. Everyone, of course, will be there.
