YALE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF NURSING
My Dear Associates Near and Far:

Another year has winged its way and we have grown in experience, and I trust in judgment and in wisdom. Throughout the world, this year, even more than last, has been marked by a spirit of deep unrest due to the uncertainty with which our times are beset. Although in America we are free to live, to learn and to work in accord with our ideals and traditions, we can not be unmindful that many of our colleagues in certain other countries have been denied the privileges so freely showered upon us. During the past year letters have come from our own graduates, particularly from China and from Czechoslovakia, which have filled us with pride and at the same time with humility as we have become aware of the problems with which they had to cope in these sorely devastated countries.

In Yale-in-China, Changsha, Edna Hutchinson (B. N. 1935), Dean of the School of Nursing, has done a marvelous piece of work. In the face of obstacles those with broader and longer experience would have hesitated to encounter, she discharged her duties to the patients with the greatest skill and courage. To see the well established school of nursing uprooted, almost overnight, and all one’s efforts set at naught was keenly disappointing. The crucial point was reached when the graduate nurses felt themselves forced to leave their posts, and Miss Hutchinson and one doctor were left with a devoted Y. M. C. A. worker and a few attendants to care for all the patients in the hospital. Then one night they watched the city of Changsha destroyed by flames. The hospital fortunately was on the outskirts of the city and escaped unharmed.

We have been stimulated and encouraged in hearing about the splendid work which Dr. Amalia Houzvicova (B. N. 1934) is doing in her capacity as Director of the State School of Public Health Nursing and Social Service at Prague, Czechoslovakia. Under tremendous stress she has sought to establish that new school upon ideals of an unusually high character, and according to reports which have come to us from those familiar with her work we learn that in the midst of great discouragement she is wielding a remarkable influence and is performing an excellent service to the community. In a recent letter she said that it was not as easy in Europe as it is in America to accomplish one's desires, as there is very little money to spend even on what we look upon here as essential, but what to them are luxuries.

We might continue to enumerate the achievements of our graduates. The letters which they write are challenging to us, and like members of a family we long to help them and to share their burdens. As I think of former students and what they are accomplishing, I am convinced that the greatest assistance we can be to our prospective graduates is to encourage them to think, and at the same time give them the soundest preparation possible for nursing. Integrated into this preparation must be a clear concept of the nurse's function in the prevention of disease and the promotion of health, stabilized with as much constructive knowledge and practice in this field as can be made available. We should then send them out with the conviction that they must use to their utmost capacity the knowledge already acquired, and continue to supplement it as they strive to attain the purpose for which nursing exists. In no school of nursing can more be done. The professional future of any nurse rests largely with herself and the circumstances and opportunities which come to her or for which she reaches out and makes her own. Our graduates are doing well, because they are standing on their own feet and because they are thinking constructively for themselves.

I am exceedingly happy to hear from one state and another that graduates of the Yale University School of Nursing are taking their places with graduates from other schools in promoting the professional work in the state organizations. Several graduates are now holding office in the State and National Associations and gradually they will come to occupy positions of prominence and influence among nurses not only of our own country but of the world. The literature should soon be enriched by books and articles from the pen of Yale nurses, and it will be a happy day indeed when we can point with pride to title pages and find familiar names as authors. Already some articles have appeared in the Journal, but not as many as could be produced by some of our talented and gifted members.

For the first time it is my sad duty to announce the death of two students from the Class of 1939. Eleanor Wisser passed away in her sleep while resting in the Infirmary for a few days with a slight cold. Miss Wisser we knew had a cardiac condition which appeared to be of minor consequence. She had been advised not to remain through the arduous period of training, but she was very happy in her work and wished to continue.

Her mother has established a scholarship in Eleanor's memory to be given to a second year student to assist her in completing the course in nursing. The University has accepted the capital sum which has been invested and the interest will hereafter be made available to a student who by need and scholarship may make the best use of it. On her birthday, March 1st, at Mrs. Wisser's request, the announcement of the scholarship was made to the Senior class at tea, at which time a photograph of Eleanor was received and has been hung in the tea room in the Sterling Dormitory.

We are also grieved to state that Madoline Hartwell Cliffton, who had been married during the previous summer, died on the birth of a baby girl at her home in Colorado Springs. Mrs. Cliffton expected to return next year and complete the few months remaining to earn her degree, but she was unexpectedly taken away, and an attractive life cut short when the promise of happiness seemed to be in store for her.

The School continues to grow and to attract an exceedingly fine group of girls from the best colleges throughout the country. The present student body has representatives from 79 colleges and from 29 different states. The enrollment includes: Yale University students, 137; students from affiliating schools, 57; making a total student body of 194.

As I have been directed by the Program Committee of the Alumnae Association at the Annual Meeting to give you a résumé of the School activities as they now exist and the changes which have taken place during the past few years, I will therefore offer you my felicitations for the moment and present to you more specific information concerning the School when you come to New Haven for the Alumnae meeting and for the thirteenth annual Commencement exercises. We look forward to having a larger number than ever return for the occasion. In the meantime, accept my most cordial and affectionate greetings.

Very faithfully yours,

THE ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION

A graduate body of nearly 500 persons becoming increasingly more alumnae-conscious has great potentialities. Little by little we watch the growth of organization and wonder what enterprise will become an expression of this corporate strength. During the year, work on revision of the constitution for the Alumnae Association has continued with efforts directed toward bringing the new constitution into line with the expressions of opinion received last June and during the year. Once again it has gone to the State Revision Committee. It is not clear at this time whether it will be possible to bring the constitution to vote at the Annual Meeting this year.

Yale School of Nursing Alumnae Association had the good fortune to win the Connecticut State Membership Trophy, the beautiful Florence Nightingale Lamp which was given by the Connecticut Training School Alumnae Association to the Connecticut State Nurses Association. This trophy is awarded each year to the alumnae association having the largest per cent of gain over the previous year in the number of members who joined the State Organization. Yale School's increase in 1938 was 27.7 per cent. Our School is the first to win the Trophy a second time, Yale having won it in 1934, also. Yale Alumnae were deeply touched and made very happy by the kind and thoughtful tribute which the Connecticut Training School Alumnae expressed by sending a huge bouquet of flowers with an appropriate message conveying congratulations and good wishes when the Trophy was awarded at the Annual Banquet.

The Alumnae Association has forwarded to the International Council of Nurses a check for $34.77, an amount assigned to resident members according to arrangements voted at the Biennial Convention in Kansas City. The sum was raised by the New Haven Regional Group through a card party held in Sterling Dormitory.

Yale Alumnae will have an opportunity to attend the next meeting of International Council of Nurses to be held in the United States in 1941, at which time Dean Taylor will preside as President of the international organization.

REUNIONS

Reunions will be held this year by the classes of 1929 and 1934. Those acting as Reunion Chairmen for their respective classes are: Marian Wenrich, 23 Dwight St., New Haven, Conn., for the class of 1929, and Frances Stratton Shaffer, 42 Hubinger St., for the class of 1934.
FROM OUR DEAN EMERITUS

Hartford, Connecticut
April 4, 1939

Dear Colleagues and Former Students:

It is again my privilege to greet you through the pages of the Alumnae News.

As the years go by, we follow with justifiable pride your ever extending activities. From Asia, from Africa, from Europe and from North, South, East and West on this Continent reports of your work leave no question, be the branch what it may, of your steadfastness of purpose and of the value accorded your interpretation of nursing by those you serve.

Nor should the contribution of you who have chosen the home as your social activity be overlooked. Upon the children of today and tomorrow is imposed the building of a finer civilization than will be bequeathed them. We have no question of the influences that will surround and shape the social outlook of your children.

I am still at the Neuro-Psychiatric Institute and very happy that we have with us three Yale graduates: Mollie Curtis, '31, who returned from Seattle in January to function as Associate Director of Nursing; Jean MacLean, '33, who joined the staff as Associate Director of Education in August, 1938, and Ruth Dingman, '35, who came as Educational Director in the fall of 1937.

We are hoping that new members of the graduating class and therefore former students of Jean MacLean will be interested to enroll in the Post-Graduate Course or for staff duty, for we are convinced that for those interested in this perplexing and neglected aspect of disease, the progressive program of the Institute has much to offer. And let me add, there is no branch of nursing that more greatly needs the sound and broad preparation the Yale graduates bring.

This year, as previously, I would beg your support of a movement bearing directly on those aspects of health work which we have before mentioned as our special concern. I refer to the great appropriation requested from Congress, submitted through the Wagner Bill, for the health and welfare needs of our country, needs revealed by the Inter-departmental Committee on Health and Welfare appointed by the President five years ago. The findings of this Committee and these recommendations were presented last July (1938) to representatives of the professions concerned and of social and labor organizations.

Abstracts of the report together with the discussions for and against the recommendations may be obtained from Mr. G. St. J. Perrott, Secretary, the Inter-departmental Committee To Coordinate Health and Welfare Activities, Washington, D. C.

I would urge that you, who through your professional or social associations can be of influence, and there are few who cannot, obtain this publication, that you may be informed in the matter. We nurses who know these needs, and from many angles, cannot fail to further so just a demand.

The methods for meeting these needs call for serious consideration. The following questions presented by the United States News to the participants in the conferences, may be of interest and assistance to you in formulating your conclusions.

1. Is there need for reform in the system of medical care now available in this country?
2. If reform is needed, should it take the form of compulsory health insurance as a part of a Social Security system?
3. Or should any reform be based purely upon voluntary group insurance methods under control of the medical profession itself?
4. If voluntary group insurance is considered inadequate, would a tax-supported system of insurance providing care for major illness and hospitalization be favored?

I wish you could really know my deep interest in your welfare and achievements. The letters and cards that come to my desk from time to time, and so rarely answered, mean more to me than I can express.

Faithfully yours,
THE CRIPPLED CHILDREN PROGRAM IN CONNECTICUT AS AN EXAMPLE OF THE PUBLIC HEALTH NURSE’S PART IN SOCIAL SERVICE ACTIVITIES

The Social Security Act passed by Congress in 1935 has increased the opportunities of the public health nurse to a considerable extent because it has stimulated the enlargement of state and local programs in public health work.

Public health nursing is being stimulated in all its branches and programs requiring public health nurses’ services are being administered by several bureaus in the State Department of Health such as Bureau of Venereal Disease and Bureau of Child Hygiene.

The latter bureau had been carrying on a child health program since 1923, working with local health officers, physicians, and public health nurses and sending out members of its own staff when local facilities were lacking, to provide for regular physical examinations and nursing follow-up of infants and pre-school children in the rural areas.

In Connecticut a law was passed in 1937 appropriating $60,000 for crippled children services. This amount was matched with Federal funds. The State Department of Health was designated as the official agency to administer these funds and accordingly drew up plans for the organization, and enlarged the staff of the Bureau of Child Hygiene to carry on the work.

Money is provided in the budget for further training of the staff so that they may meet the higher standards of qualifications required of public health workers. New workers must meet the qualifications set up by the Personnel Department under Connecticut’s Civil Service requirements. When these qualifications are met, the applicants take written and oral examinations given by experts in the respective fields in order to be eligible for appointment. In the states where civil service examinations are not given, the state makes the highest professional qualifications its requirement.

"The Minimum Qualifications for Those Appointed to Positions in Public Health Nursing"¹ as drawn up by the National Organization for Public Health Nursing should be consulted by nurses who are interested in obtaining appointments under Social Security.

The Crippled Children Program started in February of 1938. It is closely integrated with the maternal and child health programs and uses one-third of the time of the same field nurses, who, consequently, carry the maternal and child health, and crippled children services.

This program depends upon the help of all local public health and school nurses in its nursing follow-up and in case finding. Two-thirds of the children already admitted for services are of school age, so that the school nurse becomes an especially important factor in the follow-up work.

The duties of the orthopedic supervising nurse in this program are as follows:

(1) To assist in the organization of clinic procedures and in interpreting to the patient and family the physician's findings and recommendations.

(2) To report to the medical social worker all cases needing social planning.

(3) To contact the local nursing agency when nursing follow-up is required.

(4) To assist the local nurse with special orthopedic nursing problems.

(5) To assist in the staff education programs of the state and local nurses.

(6) To speak to lay and professional groups, interpreting the service to them and pointing out the preventive aspects of the problem as well as those phases in the care of crippled children which are not yet adequately provided.

(7) To send orders and reports to cooperating agencies and to receive reports from them.

(8) To keep records of the nursing follow-up that is done and submit regular reports.

One important aim of the nursing program is to consider always the entire health problem of the child and his family and keep the orthopedic or other crippling problem in its proper place in relation to the rest of his needs. And secondly, to provide a stimulus to local communities to improve their facilities for health work.

To conclude then: How does Social Security affect the Public Health Nurse in a Crippled Children's program—?

(1) It is a stimulus to the local nurse to increase her knowledge and improve the quality of her work.

(2) It provides for further education of public health nurses in special fields.
(3) It provides challenging opportunities for service, to qualified nurses who are interested in the fields covered by its program.

Orthopedic Supervising Nurse, Division of Crippled Children, Connecticut State Department of Health.

REGIONAL GROUPS
This year, the Boston Regional Group boasts thirty-one members. On November 15th, 1938, the group held their fall meeting, which was devoted to a report from Revision Committee Meetings. Recommendations regarding suggested changes were sent by the Chairman to the Revision Committee. A dinner meeting was held in February at which time Miss Goodrich was guest speaker. She spoke on the White House Conference on National Health. This enterprising group plans another get-together before Commencement.

The New York group has had two meetings this winter. They sent two members to the Constitution Revision Meetings in February. New York has done considerable work in helping to plan a constitution to meet the growing needs of a large alumnae body.

The Albany Regional Group met in February at the rooms of the Albany Visiting Nurse Association. This group discussed the proposed constitution, and returned recommendations to the Revision Committee.

San Francisco Alumnae also discussed the constitution, and sent recommendations to the Committee.

Four of the members of Y.S.N. Alumnae gathered together in Columbus, Ohio, this winter. A very pleasant evening was spent visiting busily from one thing to another even touching the proposed constitution.

During the year, Elizabeth James reported on a get-together of the Philadelphia Regional Group.

The New Haven Regional Group has been quite active this year. At its first meeting, the following officers were elected: Chairman—Dee Yoho, Secretary—Esther Budd, Vice Chairman—Margaret Beaghler, and Treasurer—Patricia Walsh. During the year the Program Committee under the leadership of Eleanor Fisher Johnston has presented a number of very interesting programs. In February the group gave a card party under the direction of Patricia Walsh, for the purpose of raising our appropriation to the Florence Nightingale Foundation. The evening was most successful both in point of fun and funds. The Opportunity Sale this year was handled largely by the younger graduates in the Regional Group. And never in the history of Opportunity Sales has such an array of things been collected and displayed. So many, in fact, that except for the excellent floor show (which featured Ferdinand in all his glory) one would have believed herself at Klines. As a result, $211.50 was raised through this effort. The final meeting of the year will be a banquet, May 22nd at the Y. W. C. A. at which both Miss Goodrich and Miss Taylor will be present.

Note: Alumnae Day is a new feature this year. Because our members are scattered far and wide they found it very difficult to return to New Haven for a three-day period; but they felt that they would like to attend one day brimming full of activity. The Program Committee accepted the suggestion and they hope that the Alumnae will return to their Alma Mater in large numbers.

IN AND ABOUT THE STATES

On May first of this year, Helen Johnson '37 will embark for Wrangel, Alaska, where she will be engaged in Public Health Nursing.

The Christmas season brought holiday greetings from Naomi Weiss '36 who is the headnurse of a medical ward at the University of California. Don't you miss the lobectomies, Naomi?

Lily Berman Covit '34 has recently moved to Manila, Philippine Islands to make her home there indefinitely. During 1938, she was associated with the Public Health Nursing Service of the Board of Health, Territory of Hawaii.

Gayle Isensee '30 is doing a special study for the Rochdale Institute of The Co-operative League of the U. S. A. New Haven had the pleasure of a visit from Gayle just a short time ago.

Priscilla Humphrey Halpert '27 has been elected president of The Louisiana League of Nursing Education. As the news goes to press, Priscilla is welcoming the members of the League to Louisiana.

Virginia Kirk '27 still researching in Child Guidance writes that she is digging ever deeper into the soil of Tennessee and liking it. Ginny has many local connections varying from professional associations to work with the Scouts and arranging exhibits for the Camera Club.

Viola Hovey Cowles '35 has reverted into a little homebody trying to learn how to make Parker House Rolls without being completely stuck up with bread dough.
Elizabeth Robb ’37 has a position as teaching supervisor at the Ohio Valley General Hospital.

Last year one of the copies of the Graphic Survey described a day with a Public Health Nurse in the mountains of West Virginia. The nurse was none other than Laura Burrow Long ’33.

Isabel Howe Wegman ’31 and her daughter, Judith, visited New Haven this winter.

Ruth Lyman Fanselow ’31 has high hopes of wending her way eastward either in May or June. We wish that son, Jack, would be accompanying his mother.

One Saturday morning in October, Helen Smith ’35 arrived in New Haven for a surprise visit with her classmate, Pat Walsh. During the coming year, Helen will be acting director of nursing at the Allentown, Pa., State Psychiatric Hospital.

The class of 1933 came to the front in January, 1939. Marion Raynor Farnham ’33 is the mother of twin sons, Lee and Hunter Farnham.

Virginia Loupret ’36 has had a busy year in N. Y. City where she has been studying for her master’s degree at Teachers College.

Elizabeth Bixler ’27 is attending the League Convention in New Orleans. Bix has been in great demand lately for speeches and committees working for better psychology in nursing through basic psychiatric affiliation and improved psychiatric nursing through specialization.

Aubigne Cushing Smith ’35 finds her two young daughters lots of fun and education. Aubigne finds time to be a member of the Woman’s Club of the University of Rochester, the Community Players, and the Civic Chorus. Maybe someday we will find Aubigne on Broadway.

Since September 1st, 1938, Jeanette Moore ’32 has been Educational Director and Science Instructor at the Genesee Hospital School of Nursing, Rochester, N. Y.

Sara Crandall Washeim ’29 was “the life of the party” this fall when she told tales of night duty and day duty from the lives of Eleanor Moyle and Marion Wenrich ’29. Those must have been the days! Sally joined the New Haveners in a shower for Laddie, whose son, Michel, was born in New Haven in September. Laddie left the States in November for Beirut.

Ruth Gilbert ’27 has finished the book-length study of “Mental Hygiene in Public Health Nursing” which is due for publication by the Commonwealth Fund in the late Spring. Dex has come to New Haven as psychiatric social worker for Psychiatric Service in the community (a consulting service to community agencies).

Esther Budd '31 will be on a leave of absence in the year 1939 to 1940 so that she may do some intensive and extensive work on her master's degree.

Eleanor Stonington Stevens '35 has joined the staff of the Community Health Association in Boston while Dr. Stevens is doing Neurology and Neuro-Surgery at the Boston City Hospital.

News! Lawson Allen Wilkinson had his first tooth at five months. Allen, who is the son of Elizabeth Wilkinson '32, is the pride and joy of Hamden.

Rusty Hall Morris '27 expects to teach at the University of California in Berkeley this summer.

Mildred Twiss Briggs '35 has just returned from a motor trip to Washington, D.C., where she had a delightful visit with Laura Rounds Bloom '35.

Katherine Park '31 will soon be leaving Smith to return to Isham Infirmary at Andover.

Ruth Johnson '32 left the staff of the N. H. H. to be Infant Supervisor at Children's Memorial Hospital in Chicago.

Shirley Shingle Speir '32 has found time to teach two classes in Home Nursing besides caring for her daughter, Betsey, and son, Bobbie.

The question is: Which Fair will Burch attend? It has been two years since Ruth Burcham '33 crossed the U. S. A. We have been told that the Columbia River fishing may permit her to roam only as far as San Francisco.

Frances Stratton Shaffer '34 has returned to New Haven. Fran and Karen Engstrom are the only members of the class of '34 in the city.

Frances Theilbar '32 returned to Butler Hospital in September after receiving her M.S. degree at Chicago University. Fran is acting as Program Chairman for the Biennial Convention of the New England Division of the A. N. A.

Marion Goodrich Sanford '37 is moving North again this summer to live next year in Middlebury, Conn., where her husband will be teaching at the Westover School.
Dear Alumnae:

Far and away before me stretches the azure blue of the Caribbean Sea. It is mid-morning and the day is June-like in its perfection, bright sunshine and soft breezes.

As I sit here on the Gallery of our house overlooking the Bay, I am aware of the daily routines of the street below—the Native women chattering among themselves are slowly swinging along with their fruits and vegetables piled high on the wooden head-trays which they balance so dexterously atop their gaily kerchiefed heads. Perched on top of their wares, is a broad brimmed straw hat to be donned simultaneously with the removal of the tray. Great care is taken by young and old alike to keep the head covered at all times—against the daytime sun and the evening dew. Our laundress works the whole day thru wearing her pink horsehair hat as she pounds out the linens on a wooden board, boils bedlinen over a blazing fire and irons with her charcoal burning "goose." The cook's straw hat hangs on a nail in the kitchen door where it can be reached by the left hand as her right hand opens the door each time she ventures out into the yard if only to hang up a dishcloth! The most impressive sight of all, is that of the Hospital Nurses who at night before venturing between buildings, perch a wide brimmed straw hat atop their uniform caps! Frequently one sees tiny boys at play, naked save for a short shirt covering their chests, but always a hat on their heads.

A man crying out his wares approaches on his way from the abattoir on the edge of town to the market—calling as he goes, "Nice fresh pork for breakfast, Ladies." The meat also lies on a wooden head-tray which is this time covered by a wire mesh. Meat here rarely sees the refrigerator, going almost directly from the slaughter to the cooking pot. As a consequence, it is "green" tasting and is to be avoided in favor of fresh fish, lobster, and chickens. With our proximity to the wharf, we can hear the conch shell blown by each small fishing sloop as they approach and cook can in her promptness, benefit in her selection.

A two wheeled donkey cart has stopped at our gate and a small boy gone round to the rear to pick up an empty Vermouth bottle in which earlier came our daily supply of whole milk which we must strain and boil before using. Shortly also will come our bread—a small three cent loaf which is almost un-leavened in appearance and taste. It is baked in a neighborhood out-of-door oven and delivered by a wizened old woman carrying it about in her native woven basket. Her swollen legs are visible beneath her heavy calico dress and starched white hem-lengthed apron, wound round and round with brown burlap bandages, the method used here for treating the common filariasis infection (elephantiasis). This disease is transmitted by the mosquito and one must be bitten many times by an infected insect before acquiring the disease. The Natives close and bolt all doors and windows of their shacks each night, wrap up their heads so they won’t be disturbed by the noise of the mosquitos and let them bite!—hence there is an abundance of the infection among the older people.

The people of the Island of St. Croix may be classed in four groups—the Natives, originally slaves brought here en route from Africa; the so-called Islanders who are mostly Danish in origin having come out during the early days prior to 1917 when the islands belonged to Denmark; the Immigrant Puerto-Ricans; and the Americans, most of whom are in Government employ. Of course the Natives predominate, comprising 80% of the total population. There is, as one might expect, a good bit of color mixture, the light native being referred to as “clear.” The Natives rather than being immoral are instead unmoral. Marriage is not common—instead men and women live together for years, propagating large families. Frequently the man will also beget “outside children” to whom he gives his name and two dollars monthly. Often both families live in close proximity and the children are brought up together with no apparent discord. In clarifying identities, one is frequently told something as follows: “I am Henry the outside child of John Marco—Elita Eberson is my mother.”

The native tongue is Cruzan. It is based on English but sounds quite foreign as it is rapidly rattled off. They reverse word order, invent pronunciations and manufacture idioms at will. It is intensely interesting to hear, and we are gradually learning to understand it. As an example when we rented our house, we “met” a number of mahogany trees full grown in our garden—the cook “met” her youngster with his eye “properly” swollen up when she returned home last eve and the large tin of meat (excellent Danish ham) which she had difficulty in opening yesterday “was fighting her” as she hurried dinner preparations.

All cooking by the Natives is done over charcoal burning coal-pots. The native diet is limited largely to “Fungi” a combination of cornmeal, okra and fish and a more inclusive dish called "Caliloo" which mixes together bush greens, ham and fish heads. Fruits in season complement this diet. The pineapple, mangos, papyas, guavas and bananas which are called figs to distinguish them from a second type which is used as a frying vegetable, are all excellent.

Everyone from the smallest of children is conscious of the scarcity of water and it is educational to note the conservation. We are told it can be really trying should our cistern run dry. Each house has its own cistern which drains all available roof tops. The island is entirely dependent on its rainfall for its water supply. It is the frequent droughts which are almost solely responsible for the poverty everywhere so prevalent, agriculture being the chief means of livelihood with sugar cane the foremost product. At one time this particular island was ¾ cultivated in sugar cane with numerous large estates scattered about. Today only about ¼ of the area is under cultivation and all that remains of the prosperity of the old days are the picturesque ruins now almost completely hidden by undergrowth, their sites marked by the cylindrical stone windmill bases. As a consequence of the water shortage, sea bathing is a popular routine with both natives and beasts. On Sunday mornings as we eat our breakfast we can see from our Gallery the small native boys riding their horses out into the Bay where amid much splashing and noise both are cleansed by the sea.

Gardening offers a bit of a challenge for the flowers and shrubs alike must be watered once or twice a day. Almost every morning finds me out with my ex-coffee tin and bucket pumping and carrying rain water around the yard. During November and December we had our so called rainy season with its frequent torrential downpours and it was amazing to note the outburst of the foliage. The garden burst forth in brilliant colors—scarlet hibiscus, purple and red bouganvillia and pink and white coralita which climbs the stone walls showering them with its blooms.

There are so many and such interesting customs for us to see daily. The extreme poverty of the people is responsible for many of the habits. For instance, in the country the old men wear what they call "Bile" shoes. These are made from strips of old automobile tires cut the length of the foot and held on by string. Tin cans are rarely thrown away but are used as cups, cooking utensils and flower pots. The large kerosene tins are prized and their most conspicuous use is that of plant tubs which line all out-of-door staircases and balconies. In the market the scant fruits and vegetables offered are piled in penny heaps with each vendor sitting beside her wares and attempting to entice the buyer by adding one more small potato or over-ripe tomato to the heap already there. Saturday mornings at the Bank find in the line before the cashier numerous old men and women who in turn, beg a couple of pennies which the cashier counts out and hands to them as though he were cashing their personal checks! Harsh words are rarely spoken and no one seems annoyed with the beggars—rather, everyone is especially kind.

Altogether our adventure to date has been most satisfactory in every respect. If there are times when I think too long about such things as hot showers running indefinitely, ice cream minus evaporated milk or current movies we read about but must wait eight to ten months to see, there are many more times when I lie basking on the beach and watch the weekly steamship hauling in her anchor as she points her bow toward the wintry blasts of the North, and I am deeply content with this life on an island in the Caribbean.

With the best of wishes to you all,

Sincerely,

VERNA SMITH ROGIER.
