FROM THE DEAN

The topic is money.
We need it.
If you've been following the YAM lately, or if you read the volumes of material from AYA and the Alumni Fund, you know Yale has begun the largest private fund raising venture ever. The School of Nursing is part of the plan and we need $3.5 million dollars.

We need the funds for our programs, construction, equipment, student aid and faculty support. A special effort is being made to complete the endowment for the Annie W. Goodrich Chair. (Interesting example of inflation here; when the Chair was first proposed, a total endowment meant $250,000. Now it's one million.)

We need the fund just to keep up to say nothing of moving ahead. There is already an $8000 gap between tuition, high as it is, and the cost of educating one student. Students are coming to us with huge previous educational debts -- sometimes $10,000 or more. To maintain the quality of our programs takes a large number of highly skilled faculty. And you've read of our renovation and remodeling plans to give the space we need critically now.

Under the Campaign for Yale, the overall title of the project, alumni are being asked to make one special gift each.

These are special years. In 1976 we celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the first graduation from YSN. In 1977 we'll have the first graduation from the new three year program. And the Bi-centennial gives both a boost of energy.

Some of you may wish to carry your special gift over a five year period, pledging an amount to be given in installments. You'll all hear more about the opportunities for supporting us in the next year.

This message, then, is a kick-off. The YSN programs are too good to lose, and we've come too far to fall back. Let's see if YSN can lead the way again for Yale's alumni -- it's a special place and a crucial time.

- Donna Diers, Dean, '64

FROM THE PRESIDENT OF YUSNAA

Another year has come to an end with Alumnae College and Alumnae Day as the highlights. But, first of all a special message to those of you who were at dinner on May 19th in New Orleans: although I was unable to be with you in person, I did send greetings via Mailgram which, alas, did not arrive in time. I thank Dorothy Sexton for explaining my absence, and, after the fact, send you greetings from New Haven with the intended message that we, the YUSNAA are very proud of our school, its progress and achievements, its Dean, Faculty and students.

As you read about the events of the June 6 and 7 weekend, I think you too, will realize the impact that YSN and its Alumnae have been and continue to make on nursing. It will become more evident to you, as it did to those of us who attended the seminars, that as the faculty and students tread new paths in education, so do our fellow alumnae "out there" as they respond to changes and progress affecting their leadership roles in varieties of settings and circumstances. For some, it has meant re-entry into active nursing; for others, a return to academia for additional preparation with different foci; while, to a special five alumnae, it meant being cited as Distinguished Alumnae, 1975. To a loyal and long time friend of YUSNAA and Professor Emeritus, Elizabeth Tennant, we extended honorary membership in YUSNAA. Dean Diers and I shared the honor and privilege of reading the citations and presenting the awards to:

Carolyn Widmer, 1929
Elizabeth Logan, 1937
Elizabeth R. Smith, 1945W
Janet S. Hine, 1947W
Lucy Conant, 1950

All but Elizabeth Logan were there to receive their awards, in person. Our roster of Distinguished Alumnae has now risen to a total of fifteen.

As this goes to press, we will be having our annual joint meeting of new and retiring board members, and look back on 1974-75 as we look ahead to 1975-76. We welcome news and comments from you at all times during the year, so we can plan activities that will be of interest and value for all of you. We are particularly interested in hearing from MSN graduates who should soon be approaching milestones in their careers which can be shared with us in future meetings.

Dorothy J. MacLennan, '52

FROM THE EDITOR

Another year has passed and we welcome 32 new members to the Alumnae Association. We know you will have a great deal to share with your fellow alumnae and what better way than through your newsletter. Two future issues will be mailed to you this year. All alumnae: please have your contributions submitted by November 1 for the New Year issue and by March 15 for the Spring issue.

FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL OF THE STUDENTS' GOVERNMENT

Being a student at YSN during the past year has been quite an experience for me, especially at this very exciting time of growth. Last Fall, along with being welcomed as a member of the Class of '76, I shared a beginning with the Class of '77, twelve people new to the profession of nursing. We have all worked hard, integrating theory and clinical practice, growing both professionally and personally. But during the past year, the interchange among students from the 2-year program and the new 3-year "basic" program has added a very special dimension to our experience. Whenever we came together, whether in classes, a clinical area, lunch time interdepartmental student gatherings arranged by Eileen Skowronski and the Student Council, or just during relaxation breaks from our busy schedule, I was continually impressed at how well and how often students learn from each other. The basic students, bringing with them very rich and varied backgrounds from disciplines other than nursing, have challenged the old ways, giving us some fresh and very stimulating new looks at our profession. I for one feel that my education has been greatly enhanced by their presence. I hope that we have added to their experience.

I look forward to the coming year and the continued growth it will surely bring to each student individually, and to the school as a whole. As students, we are aware of the very special interest and support YSN's alumnae has always maintained in its school, an important contribution to the quality of growth and development of YSN.

ALUMNAE COLLEGE

The 18th Annual Alumnae College was held Friday, June 6 at YSN. Greetings and Announcements from Dean Diers, Mary Colwell and Dorothy MacLennan were made. The day of Seminars began with "The Current Scene at Home" in which two topics running concurrently were addressed: "Nursing Research at Yale" and "The Three Year Program"; "Our Alumnae Where Have We Been and Where Are We Going" consisted again of two Seminars: "The Recent Graduates" and "The M. N.'s". In the afternoon session "The State of the Profession - Where Do We Go Together?" consisted of seminars on "The Health Services Delivery
The following includes short reports on the six seminars:

The M.N. 's

What impressed this reporter most at the seminar on Our Alumnae—the M.N.'s was the enthusiasm and "new career" involvement of the panelists. If the moderator, Betty Ford, M.N. '56, had not explained the seminar would address issues such as, "What it's like to come back," "Where the M.N.'s are at," and "What re-entry is like," it would have been easy to assume the panel was a group of new graduates in the midst of establishing exciting new work roles, expanding nursing boundaries and developing self-satisfying professional identities. As a matter of fact, three of the four are "new graduates": Jeanne Pieroway Piccirillo, M.N. '53, completed an M.S. in Special Education at Southern Conn. State College in 1971; Tinker Barnett, M.N. '48, an M.S. from Southern also in 1973; while Joan Mulligan, M.N. '56, is continuing to pile up credentials as she completes work on a Ph.D. Since leaving the East coast, Joan has earned a M.S. from Univ. of California at San Francisco in 1963, an M.P.H. from Univ. of California at Berkeley in 1964, an A.P.D. from Univ. of Michigan in 1974, as well as a C.N.M. from Downstate Medical College of New York in 1974.

As Joan told it, the certificate in midwifery has brought her the most satisfaction, since it has allowed her to return to patient care as an independent self-employed practitioner. She finds working in teen clinics and with post-abortion patients most rewarding since it's where she fits most comfortably, doing "the most for youngsters I care for."

Betty Puzak, '41, after working in Public Health in the "inner city", chose what has been labeled the traditional woman's role, assisting her urologist husband, raising her family, community work, and, to keep in touch with nursing, taking continuing education courses. After becoming ill, she was determined to "do something in nursing" and has become Assistant Program Co-Ordi-nator for Continuing Education in Professional Nursing and Allied Health Professionals for the University of Virginia in Falls Church. She is working exactly "where it's at" and described an exciting, innovative interdisciplinary program. Her job has improved her health and outlook to the future. She stated she has "found my niche in life," an opportunity to raise the quality of health care delivery by upgrading nursing.

Jeanne said she "drifted" into nursing-teaching handicapped children and now finds herself in a position to serve a population of adolescents who obviously have tremendous needs. Her personal satisfactions include feeling involved with a job "vital to me as a person."

Tinker, too, expressed the importance of finding satisfaction in various stages of life and sees her reinvlement with YSN as a "developmental phase -- a women's liberation thing," but one not at all unusual for YSN graduates since it fits neatly into traditions and norms established by such people as Anne Goodrich and Effie Taylor.

Ruth Schmidt, '66

The Three Year Program

Doris Banchik served as moderator. Dorothy Sexton, Chairman of Med.-Surg. Program gave background of the development of the Three Year Program.

Students in the program, Class of 1977, explained the reasons why they came to Yale; reasons ranged from wanting to be a mid-wife; being influenced by the Dean's article in the Yale Alumni Magazine; talking with Yale School of Nursing graduates.

The audience asked many interesting questions, which pertained to the differences and similarities in the old and new program; eligibility for licensure and the articulation with the MSN program.

The faculty members of the panel described their experiences in teaching the students, commenting on the students' ability to relate easily to the hospital staff, their independence and self-direction, their quick assimilation into clinical relations, and their ability to teach each other.

The students described their experiences which at times was overwhelming, very satisfying, a lot of hard work, the realization that some of their expectations were unrealistic, the interesting teaching methods, the stresses in the clinical setting. The students highlighted the need to find a balance between their personal and academic life.

There was an interesting informal exchange between the students and audience. The graduates in the audience of the "old" 3-year program found the students in the new program having the same problems and stresses as they did.

Margaret Allman, '49

R. O'Grady, assistant prof. pediatrics; A. Ford, student; S. Potter, student; K. Knight, student; D. Banchik, instructor psych. nursing; N. McLean, student; D. Sexton, assistant prof. med.-surg.

The Health Services Delivery System

John Thompson, new chief of the Division of Health Services Administration, Dept. of Epidemiology and Public Health at Yale University spoke during the afternoon on the topic of The Health Services Delivery System.

There were three main emphases of his lecture. They were: 1) a brief history of federal legislation regarding a public policy regarding health (he cited Public Laws 89-749 and 93-641, the latter became law on 1/2/75), 2) a review of a process for arriving at public policy and 3) comparison of some of the details of the two public laws that involve planning, priorities and consumer input.

The audience provided for lively interchange during the question and answer period.

Betty Ford, '56

Nursing Research at Yale

With Mary Jane Kennedy as moderator, Carol Davis '72, Judy Krauss '70, Ann Slavinsky '67, Madelon Visintainer '74, and Christine Wioska '75 focused on the research process and some of the problems. The following questions were addressed: 1) How do you get involved in research? 2) How does it feel to be doing research in a practice setting and what are the people's responses to you as a researcher? 3) What happens when doing research in a non-academic setting? 4) How does one disseminate research findings? 5) Is student research valid?

Issues concerning funding and informed consent of patients were discussed. This excellent panel provided for an enlightening discussion between the audience and the panelists.

Our Alumnae - The Recent Graduates

Helen Swallow '75, Instructor, Maternal-Newborn Nursing was moderator for this excellent panel discussion. Virginia Cleary '74, Community Mental Health Nursing Advisor, discussed what she had learned in her first job to help her prepare for her second job experience. Karen Davidson '73, returning again for the second time at YSN described her role over the past three years as nurse midwife in a private group practice. Patricia Mulhearn '74, Pediatric Nurse Practitioner, addressed issues of incorporating with a physician in private practice. Vivian Romoff '72 (former Psychiatric faculty member), Director of Nursing and Assistant Director for Inpatient and Partial Hospitalization at W. P. I. C. in Pittsburgh, described her work and Kathleen Stone '73, Instructor, Dept. of Ob-Gyn Johns Hopkins Univ., discussed private practice and work on the faculty at a University Hospital.

The discussion centered around the major issue of how Yale prepared the graduates for their work and how they dealt with some of the conflicts in their jobs.

Sexual Politics in Medicine and Nursing

Susan Caghan '72, Asst. Professor, Psychiatric Nursing, opened the discussion with a superb definition of sexual politics. Katherine Nuckolls '41 (former Chairperson of the Dept. of Pediatrics), acted as moderator for the panel. The panel members were: Fred Cohen, M.D., Chief Resident, Obstetrics and Gynecology; George Cohn, M.D., Assoc. Professor Clinical Psychiatry & Medicine, Veterans Hospital; Sally Cohn, M.S.N., Private Consultant, Community Health Nursing; Charlotte Houde, M.S.N., Chairman, Maternal-Newborn Nursing Program; Asst. Professor Maternal-Newborn Nursing and Obstetrics & Gynecology; Kevin Kinsella, Asst. Professor Psychiatry, Conn. Mental Health Center; Larry Kirstein, M.D., Post-doctoral Fellow, Psychiatry (Univ. Health Services); Bernard Schachtel, M.D., Postdoctoral Fellow, Pediatrics (Johnson Clinical Scholar); Elsa Stone, M.D., Postdoctoral Fellow, Pediatrics (Child Study Center); Lynn Wilk, M.D., Chief Resident and Director of Staff, Yale Psychiatric Institute.

A discussion between audience and panelists evolved.

The class of 1955 announced a special gift in memory of Ann Featherstone Cudahy, a memorial fund to be established in her name.

Following the recognition of the reuniting classes, the Distinguished Alumnae Awards were presented to:
Lucy Houghton Conant, '50

Always combining serious thought with laughter, she exhibits those qualities necessary for a craftsman in the art of nursing, and a scholar of its science.

For a quarter of a century she has steadfastly contributed her talents and knowledge as an effective spokeswoman for local, state and national health concerns. She has given to the lives and education of all who have come in contact with her nursing skills, her writing, her teaching and her administrative savvy.

She has led a distinguished school of nursing through the perilous late '60's and early '70's and now moves on -- literally -- to greener pastures.

The Yale School of Nursing and the Alumnae Association take pride in presenting a Distinguished Alumna Award to Lucy Houghton Conant of the Class of 1950.

Elizabeth Calhoun Logan, '23

In practice, teaching and administration, she has served the nursing profession well, both in the United States and Canada. With clear vision, perseverance and the rare ability to get people to work together, she was instrumental in the development of Community Health Centers, a basic program and two master’s programs in nursing. As a Professor and Director of a distinguished and distinctive school of nursing, her skillful, perceptive and professional approach helped nursing as a learned profession. She brought energetic dedication and firm leadership to her role as President of the Canadian Association of University Schools of Nursing.

The Yale School of Nursing and the Alumnae Association are proud to present a Distinguished Alumna Award to Elizabeth Calhoun Logan of the Class of 1937.

Janet Sanborn Hine, '47W

Her name on the letterhead, her signature on letters, her consistent presence, and her convincing words are only the beginning of the evidence of her contributions to the School of Nursing. A capacity for sharing her time and effort behind the scenes, a quiet sense of humor, a sincere interest in others, and unusual energy and endurance with those with whom she works and to whom she offers encouragement, combine with new ideas, inspiration and leadership to achieve progressively higher goals on the School's behalf.

She has found the time and the motivation to travel miles to graduate school classes, to work odd hours in nursing service, or full time in nursing education, and still have room and enthusiasm for home and family activities.

Her contributions to student learning were recognized when she was selected by her students as one of their nominees for a distinguished teacher award. Her colleagues noted that her "performance is marked by a coupling of commitment with capability, and good humor with concern. Her continued professional growth is a way of life for this outstanding teacher."

Cited for her enthusiasm, her graciousness, and her unflagging efforts on behalf of the School of Nursing, for her continued zeal for personal and professional enrichment, and because she is a Yale Nurse in every sense of the word, the Yale University School of Nursing and its Alumnae are pleased and proud to honor as a Distinguished Alumna, Janet Sanborn Hine, of the Class of 1947W.

Carolyn Ladd Widmer, '29

Born of missionary stock, raised amid zeal and work and love, reflecting origins of a different place, and a different time, this is a person who, far more than most nurses of our era, helps sensitize our awareness of the relationship between the Crimea and Connecticut, between Florence Nightingale and the Yale School of Nursing.

She is a granddaughter of the founder and first president of an American college in Constantinople, who established a bakery and laundry to serve Crimean soldiers. Perhaps genetics and environment suggest a natural combination of inherited purpose.

She was the first American public health nurse to be sent by the Rockefeller Foundation to South America, then was Director of the hospital and nursing school in Beirut until she, like her grandfather, founded a new institution. As the first Dean of our sister Connecticut school of nursing she served with distinction for a quarter of a century.

Along the way she entered the fellowship of Phi Beta Kappa, she wed, bore two sons, and provided the profession of nursing education with a sense of historical perspective linking the symbol of the lamp with the striving for tomorrow's nursing excellence.

We thank her for providing our profession with her humanity and grace, as we take pride in presenting a Distinguished Alumna Award to Carolyn Ladd Widmer of the Class of 1929.

Elizabeth Reichert Smith, '45W

Distinguished service in health-related systems, outstanding contributions in professional practice, combined with continuous professional and academic advancement and the rearing of nine children characterize this Yale Nurse as an exemplary model for women who deem not to choose between marriage and family and a career.

Since graduation, she has completed both a master's and doctoral degrees, taught psychiatric and community health nursing and sociology, and assumed successively more important and responsible administrative and executive positions in government health services.

Serving on important boards and special committees signifies responsible community interest. Membership in honorary societies and professional associations indicates the scope of her professional and special interests.

In the words of a colleague "this is a woman who has not accepted the limitations imposed on women by traditional definitions of woman's place or nurse's role narrowly conceived. She has and continues to expand her perspective, and to have broad impact beyond her own personal life and the sphere of her practice in nursing."

She has been awarded superior service awards by the government and its administrative agencies. The Yale School of Nursing and its Alumnae, recognizing the unusual career of this exceptional alumna, are proud to present the Distinguished Alumna Award to Elizabeth Reichert Smith of the Class of 1945W.

A FOUR-WEEK CORE COURSE

A Four-Week Core Course in Oncologic Nursing for Registered Nurses is to be held at YSN in March.

A four-week course in cancer nursing which will focus upon cancer as a major health problem, psychological aspects of care of the cancer patient, and nursing management in the care of specific cancers. The clinical practice will include experience directed toward improving the nurse's skill in the management of cancer patients, understanding the medical-therapeutic regime and its implications for nursing intervention, and performing a nursing assessment to determine patients' and families' strengths which could be utilized during the rehabilitation process or during dying. AYA ASSEMBLY

Nursing was very visible at the sixth AYA Assembly in April. The Chairperson of the whole shebang was Ruth Benedict YSN '48, and she put together quite a show, as you know from the AYA Newsletter that appeared in early summer. Several persons from the School were involved on the interdisciplinary panels.

Judith Belliveau Krauss YSN '70,
Research Associate, participated on a panel discussing the relationship of the University to the Community. She stressed the role of the professional schools in bridging the University to the real world, and spoke of the various School’s projects in the New Haven area. Judy made particular points about how the role of nursing and the School of Nursing in the community tends to be invisible. The audiences were surprised to find that if they were to become sick, or just need a checkup, they might well run into one of YSN’s nurse practitioners in the hospital, neighborhood health centers, private physician’s offices, and other places around.

Charlotte Houde YSN ’72, Asst. Professor, moderated the panel on ethics and social responsibility. She particularly discussed the nurse’s role in helping the patient come to his own decisions about health care, and the need for nurses to help patients negotiate the health care system. She also forecast future ethical considerations that are now beginning to face nurses in expanded roles as they take on increasing responsibility and confront the accountability that brings.

Dorothy Sexton, Asst. Professor and Chairperson, Medical/Surgical Nursing Program participated on a panel discussing the physical and environmental quality of life. Her remarks ranged from the effects of air pollution to coronary intensive care situations and the audience posed numerous question to her about how the human body responds to modern life.

Dean Diers had a role on the panel discussing career choice. She focused on letting the audiences know about what modern nursing is, and what the Yale School’s unique role is and has been.

All who had the chance to be on the panels found the experience stimulating and informative. We don’t often have the opportunity to trade ideas with our colleagues in the University, and we all felt we learned a great deal, and contributed some too!

Thoughts on AYA after Assembly VI - April 1975

This being my last assembly in three years as representative to the Association of Yale Alumni, I thought it would be appropriate to send you some thoughts about both the most recent assembly, and, also, my experiences generally in the AYA.

Assemblies are convened twice a year, and representatives come from every Yale College class, all the graduate and professional schools, and all regions of the United States. As you might imagine, it is both a varied and an exciting group of people with whom to be associated. At first glance, one could be impressed by the social or political position, business or professional status of the members. You all know the caliber of some of the intriguing individuals Yale has produced. After all, look at us! But very soon one forgets any of this and becomes intent on the more important single interest we all have in common, that being, of course, our thoughts and concerns about Yale University. These we shared, worked with, and talked about with professors, deans, students, administrators, and each other, with the hopeful aim of the betterment of Yale. I feel that some important steps have been made toward that goal. We have examined some of the most sensitive and important areas a university has: admissions, athletics, coeducation, new areas in the curriculum, finances, extracurricular activities, "town-gown" problems, and, most recently, the significance of the graduate schools in setting the pace in so many different fields for much of the educational world to follow. Perhaps the speakers were prejudiced about the programs of which they spoke, but their prejudice came most often, I felt, from an honest evaluation of the relative merits of the program they offered Yale students. Not only did we scrutinize, but we freely questioned and suggested and were answered, and so we taught and learned, both ways, back and forth...a real exchange, of value to everyone. This is, after all, the essence of teaching, of the search for the truth that is the basis of a great university.

I am humble and proud to have been a part of this activity for three years. My hope would be that I could be of some further service to Yale, and, more particularly, if possible, to the School of Nursing. I should mention, also, that I have been on the AYA Committee for the Arts, and have met almost monthly with several other assembly representatives on matters concerning the arts at Yale.
People have asked why a nurse and teacher is on a committee for the arts! It has been an experience which has emphasized to me the universality of much in higher education, of the common aims of those who care, and the need and advantage of amicably combining whatever efforts, ideas, or talents we have in order to serve.

I have had the personal enjoyment of meeting some of my father's and brother's classmates, of the friendship and fun of knowing the members of the Arts Committee, and of being a part of something I consider significant.

Thank you for allowing me to represent you.

NANCY MILIO SPEAKS AT SYBIL BELLOS LECTURE

On April 19th Nancy Milio, Lecturer in Health Services and Public Policy at Simmons College, was guest speaker at the Sybil Palmer Bellos Lecture. The address was entitled, "The Health Professions: Preparing For Today Or Yesterday". Ms. Milio stressed many issues such as the prevention of illness and the need to provide articulate leadership in order to generate health in our society, and the need to develop "self help" for the consumer. The Lecture was well attended. The Wisser tea followed the Lecture.

REPORT OF NEW YORK REGIONAL ALUMNAE GROUP

Those attending the New York Regional Alumnae Chapter meeting in April had a most worthwhile and stimulating afternoon. Not only was it delightful, as always, to meet with former colleagues and renew acquaintances from the distant and/or recent past, but the topic of the day was most informative and well presented. Virginia Brown '50, the Executive Associate of the Hospital Division of Group Health Incorporation in New York City spoke on "Comprehensive Health Planning in New York City: The Law Concept and Reality." For well over an hour Virginia discussed the subject and made us all feel very much the knowledgeable citizen. The last part of the presentation included the possible roles of nursing and medical leadership in the implementation of health services, and the several possible paths open to us were explored. One of the very pertinent items mentioned was the need for inclusion in the general nursing curriculum of courses to help the nurse understand budgets, federal grants, and funding procedures and intricacies. Also, there is an accompanying need for refresher courses in this subject area for working nurses. But the main thrust of the talk was that we should Get Involved.

The presentation was then followed by a report from AYA representative, Eleanor Grunberg, on the background and coming symposium involving AYA. Finally, Liz Plummer, the regional chapter leader, led a discussion on the future of this group. Enthusiasm was exceedingly high for annual meetings in the spring at which one of our own alumnae would speak on her area of expertise. Plans were then established to meet next April -- if not sooner!

MEDICAL CENTER COLUMN

On June 26th some 200 members of the nursing community of the Yale-New Haven Medical Center feted Anna Ryle '33, at a dinner honoring her 24 years of service as Director of the Division of Nursing, Yale-New Haven Hospital. Dorothy MacLennan, President of the Alumnae Association, spoke on behalf of the School of Nursing. She highlighted Miss Ryle's long association with the School and her work with all six of the Deans. At the banquet Miss Ryle was presented with a jeweled watch, one of Dr. Thom's watercolors of a New England snow scene, and a scrap book of letters and reminiscences from friends.

On July 15th the Executive Committee of the School, including past members, gave a dinner party for Miss Ryle in the Officers' Dining Room of Woolsey Hall. Dean Diers presented her with a YSN MSN pin made into a charm, and announced that the Executive Committee had voted to name the executive conference room in our newly remodeled building the "Anna E. Ryle Room". Miss Ryle was given an architect's drawing of what the room will look like.

Miss Ryle's portrait, painted by Deane Keller, was unveiled officially on July 24th at a brief ceremony in the Grace Education Building. Miss Ryle's family and friends were in attendance as the portrait was presented to Yale-New Haven Hospital to be hung in a place of honor. The unveiling ceremony was followed by a tea at which Miss Ryle thanked all of the donors.

Memorial Unit

The first division of the Memorial Unit to be modernized under the building's renovation program -- 3 East D -- is now accepting patients. The "new" floor more adequately provides for the medical needs of today's patient, one whose illness is, on the average, more critical than was the case when the Memorial Unit was designed and built more than 20 years ago.

"High Risk" Pregnancy Service

One of the Hospital's newest services is offered to obstetric patients whose pregnancies are considered to be "at risk". The High Risk Pregnancy Service involves specialists in the fields of obstetrics, pediatrics and internal medicine. It makes available the latest information and the most up-to-date techniques and mechanisms in the management of pregnancies in which any of a number of potentially dangerous conditions exist. In addition to multiple births, some of the problems dealt with are diabetes, cardiac disease, toxemia, high blood pressure, Rh disease, poor nutrition, thyroid disease and a history of previous fetal death.

STUDENTS AT YALE

Graduation Day - 1975

True to all the traditions, on May 19th 32 students and many faculty members marched in the traditional ceremony to the Old Campus for the University Commencement Exercises. At noon the graduates, faculty, families and friends gathered in the decorated gym at YSN for the hooding ceremony at which time the degrees were presented individually by Dean Diers and assisted by Anna Ryle and Kit Nuckolls.

The Andrew A. Vecceralli Prize was presented this year to Mrs. Penny Pierce, "who has particularly demonstrated while a student outstanding performance. Called "promising" when she entered, she has risen to superior work in both scholarship and clinical practice.
At the same time she has given service to patients in emergency situations and in general hospitals to earn additional qualification, as well as teaching students in another school while carrying the traditional heavy clinical and academic load here. In the words of one of her peers, this year's Veckerelli Prize winner has been an example to others by her ability to integrate her person with her commitment to professional practice."

A Salute to Two 3-Year Students

Wendy Gerol and Nancy McLean have been chosen to be Resident Counselors in Yale College for next year. They will live in their assigned colleges. Wendy and Nancy were selected from a large number of applicants to be residents in a Yale undergraduate college where freshmen are living. Each is assigned about 20 freshmen to whom she becomes friend and advisor, both academically and socially. They play an important part in easing the freshman's adjustment to Yale.

Margaret Cushman, '76 Chosen for New Program

Margaret Cushman, a student at the School of Nursing who is majoring in community health nursing, has been selected to participate in a new program of summer study fellowships in public policy in Washington, D.C. The program, which is sponsored by the National League for Nursing (NLN), will provide students with the opportunity to study current health policy issues firsthand and to observe federal health policy-making in action.

A senior research assistant for the Connecticut Ambulatory Care Study, Ms. Cushman was one of five students chosen for the program. They were selected on a competitive basis from among 88 nominations made by deans and directors of NLN-accredited baccalaureate and masters degree nursing programs.

Ms. Cushman has been assigned to the U.S. Senate Special Committee on the Aging.
